At 4,270 feet above sea level, Andeluna's vineyards enjoy cool, sunny days and brisk nights, fostering the development of complex, aromatic wines. Guided by a philosophy of respecting nature, Andeluna crafts wines that capture the essence of this remarkable region.

A Legacy of Craftsmanship and Family Dedication

AXIA: THE MASTIHA SPIRIT REVOLUTIONIZING THE PREMIUM SPIRITS SCENE

AXIA IS A UNIQUE, HIGH-QUALITY MASTIHA SPIRIT THAT STANDS OUT IN THE WORLD OF PREMIUM DRINKS. AT 40% ABV, ITS COMPLEX BOTANICAL PROFILE HAS QUICKLY CAPTURED THE ATTENTION OF SPIRIT ENTHUSIASTS, COCKTAIL CONNOISSEURS, AND ANYONE SEEKING SOMETHING REFRESHINGLY DIFFERENT. ROOTED IN THE MILLENNIA-OLD RULES OF MASTIHA-MAKING, AXIA BRINGS TOGETHER ANCIENT HERITAGE WITH A MODERN TWIST, CREATING A DISTINCT AND EXCITING PRODUCT.

A Rich Heritage in Every Drop

Distilled from the aromatic resin of the Mastiha tree, a gnarled and twisted evergreen found clutching to the hillsides of the Aegean island Chios, in Greece, Axia is an extra dry Mediterranean spirit. Revered for its natural flavor and well-being properties, this resin remains incredibly valuable and has incited jealousy and warfare. It's even been used as a snakebite anti-venom – a potent elixir from which our spirit has been inspired. Axia retains the unique botanical characteristics of Mastiha, but these are elevated by an enhanced distillation process to produce a low-sugar, extra-dry spirit.

An Artisanal Process of Craftsmanship

Under the guidance of Master Distiller Maroussa Tsachaki, Axia's production process is as meticulous as it is innovative. Maroussa, who boasts over 25 years of experience, ensures that every step—from the harvesting of the mastic sap to distillation—yields a spirit of exceptional quality. The sap of the mastic tree is collected by hand, dried in the wind, and cleaned, over a period lasting several months. The resulting crystals are then distilled in a process that brings together artisanal hand-crafted copper stills with the science and experience of our master distiller. The result is a smooth, dry spirit with hints of herbal, pine-like notes, a roundness of bergamot, and a subtle sweet finish.

Award-Winning Excellence

Axia's dedication to quality and innovation has not gone unnoticed. Recently, the brand was named one of the TOP 100 Premium Wine & Spirits Brands of the World by the Luxury Lifestyle Awards, a recognition that affirms Axia's place in the premium spirits market. This victory speaks to the brand's commitment to redefining the potential of Mastiha spirits and offering a product that is both steeped in history and designed for modern tastes.

A Modern Twist on Tradition

Axia offers a new and unconventional experience for those seeking something beyond the ordinary. LUIGI BOSCA: FOUR GENERATIONS OF WINEMAKING MASTERY

IN THE HALLOWED HALLS OF WINE CONNOISSEURS, THE NAME BODEGA LUIGI BOSCA IS SPOKEN WITH REVERENCE. RECOGNIZED AMONG LUXURY LIFESTYLE AWARDS' TOP 100 PREMIUM WINE & SPIRITS BRANDS FOR 2024, LUIGI BOSCA IS A WINERY THAT HAS BECOME AN INSTITUTION OF ARGENTINIAN HERITAGE. FOR OVER 120 YEARS, THIS MENDOZA-BASED COMPANY HAS BEEN PROPELLED BY FOUR GENERATIONS OF THE ARIZU FAMILY, CREATING WINES THAT EMBODY TRADITION, PIONEERING SPIRIT, AND INNOVATION.

Revolutionizing Wine, One Generation at a Time

When Leoncio Arizu set foot in Argentina in 1890, he carried with him the skills of his forebears as well as a vision that would lay the cornerstone for a new era of winemaking. That vision crystallized into Bodega Luigi Bosca, Argentina's first luxury winery. Unlike any of its contemporaries, Luigi Bosca distinguished itself by embracing bold strategies and reshaping the standards of high-end wine production. From the creation of Argentina's first high-range blends with the GALA collection in 2001 to the innovative launch of Sauvignon Blanc varietals in the 1990s, Luigi Bosca has always been ahead of the curve.

Eng. Alberto Arizu, grandson of Leoncio and current Director of Agronomy, continues this legacy with the same fervor. As the Argentine delegate to the International Wine Organisation (OIV) for Denominations of Origin and the long-serving President of the DOC Luján de Cuyo, Alberto has championed the unique voice of Mendoza wines on a global stage. He sums up their mission succinctly: "In every glass, the authentic expression of the Mendoza terroir."

The Innovator's Essential Guide

Luigi Bosca has built its success on heritage and ingenuity. The introduction of the "Finca" concept in the 1990s with Finca Los Nobles redefined what single-estate wines could achieve, emphasizing the intimate relationship between the land and the vine. Each bottle whispers the story of the sun-drenched Andes, the careful nurturing of grapes, and the alchemy of tradition and cutting-edge practices.

Their pioneering spirit also shone in 2016 with the creation of their Provence-style rosé, aptly named "A Rosé is a Rosé, is a Rosé." This delicate, blushing wine exemplifies Luigi Bosca's knack for marrying elegance with innovation—a true nod to their philosophy of breaking boundaries while staying rooted in authenticity.

LLA: As a wine critic and judge, you’re accustomed to evaluating wines based on their quality and characteristics. Can you share some insights into your approach to wine tasting and critique, and how it has evolved over the years?

LP: Over time, my palate has become more refined through exposure to a wide range of wines from different countries, regions and styles. I’ve developed the ability to discern nuances in aroma, flavor, texture, and structure, allowing me to identify quality, complexity, and typicity in wines. Regular tasting practice, including blind tastings and comparative tastings, has honed my sensory perception and expanded my tasting repertoire.

LLA: With your expertise in Champagne, what do you believe distinguishes a truly exceptional Champagne from the rest, and what should consumers look for when selecting a bottle?

LP: Several key factors distinguish a truly exceptional Champagne from the rest, such as:

Quality of Grapes: high-quality grapes sourced from vineyard sites with exceptional terroir such as Grand Cru or Premier Cru vineyards create wines that have more complexity and finesse.

Complexity and Balance: Exceptional champagne exhibits a harmonious balance of flavors, aromas, and textures, with layers of complexity that evolve over time. Also important is a fine, persistent mousse.

Aging Potential: Exceptional Champagne also has the ability to age gracefully and develop additional complexity and richness over time. These wines can be enjoyed upon release but also have the capacity to improve with several years of bottle aging, revealing new layers of flavors and texture.

When selecting a bottle of Champagne, consumers should consider the following:

Producer Reputation: Choose Champagnes from reputable producers or houses with a good track record of quality and consistency. Research the producer’s history, winemaking philosophy, awards, and accolades.

Consider your personal taste preferences when selecting a Champagne. Whether you prefer a Blanc de Blancs (made exclusively from Chardonnay), Blanc de Noirs (made from Pinot Noir and/or Pinot Meunier), or rosé Champagne there are various styles to explore, each offering its own unique characteristics.

Vintage vs. Non-vintage: Consider whether you prefer vintage Champagne (made from grapes harvested in a single exceptional year) or non-vintage Champagne (a blend of wines from multiple vintages). Vintage Champagnes often offer more complexity and aging potential, while non-vintage Champagnes provide consistency and accessibility.

Price Point: Champagne comes in a wide range of price points, from affordable options to ultra-premium cuvées.

LA: Looking back on your career so far, what is one piece of advice you would offer to aspiring wine enthusiasts or those looking to enter the world of wine journalism and criticism?

TWO WORDS “PASSION” AND “KNOWLEDGE”. THESE WERE THE KEYS TO MY SUCCESS. TO THE UPCOMING WINE JOURNALISTS – NURTURE YOUR PASSION FOR WINE BY IMMERSING YOURSELF IN ITS SENSORY DELIGHTS, CULTURAL RICHNESS, AND HISTORICAL KNOWLEDGE. LET YOUR ENTHUSIASM SHINE THROUGH IN YOUR WRITING, TASTINGS, AND INTERACTIONS. SHARE YOUR LOVE FOR WINE AUTHENTICALLY AND GENEROUSLY!

RECIPE CREATOR, AUTHOR, FOOD
WRITER, AND CULINARY CRITIC.

We had the privilege of speaking with Lise about her experiences and what she looks forward to in her new role.

Luxury Lifestyle Awards: Congratulations on being appointed to the Luxury Lifestyle Awards Food & Beverage Advisory Board. What do you hope to bring to the board in terms of your expertise and experience in the culinary industry?

Lise Timmer: Firstly, I am very honored to be part of the board.

I travel extensively and meet many different people in the food industry from many different cultures and countries. It is very important for me to be able to share all these enlightening experiences with other people and companies and to be able to work with other industry professionals.

This amazing platform is a good way to reach those who are interested in these experiences and to open discussions about the culinary world.

LLA: Can you share with us your journey from starting your career in marketing and communications to transitioning into the culinary world, particularly in France?

LT: When I was young, I moved from Holland to Paris to continue living in my beloved city. I worked a lot as a model and was able to continue in Paris, but I soon found out that it was not the life I wanted. I am a very ambitious, optimistic, and energetic person and I wanted to find out what it was that I really wanted to do in my life.

I ended up at Disneyland Paris where I worked in the press office for the grand opening of the park. It was a year-long project where I had time to do more research into what I wanted to do. Following my time with Disney, Philips France had me working on several marketing projects.

But that was not it either... I needed to go deeper, and I wanted to be surrounded by people who were immersed in doing something they enjoyed.

So my decision was to move back to the Netherlands, where I had the blessing of 2 fantastic sons. It was thanks to motherhood that I found out what I wanted to do for the rest of my life: to work in the world of the culinary arts.

I settled down, became more grounded, spent more time with my family, and cooked a lot! Maybe I should have known because as a little girl, I was always around food. I was regularly found in the kitchens of restaurants and had to know all there was to know about ingredients and how to prepare them.

Within a year I had written my first cookbook on French pastry, followed by nine more books and a series of notebooks of culinary illustrations and recipes. Meanwhile, I established my own company: Chefs' by Lise Timmer.

My friendships with chefs were on the increase and spread beyond the Netherlands. The creation and organization of a gastronomic event with 12 chefs cooking for 2 evenings was a logical step for me. I asked 6 of the chefs to cook on the first evening and the other 6 on the day after.

I called it Stars, Food & Art and took the concept to Sofitel Amsterdam and subsequently to other Sofitel hotels in Europe and the Middle East.

Soon it was not just about the dinners, but also about everything that surrounded them so that we could get more out of them. We had talented, charismatic foreign chefs, all of whom brought a wealth of knowledge, so the next step was quickly taken: we created chef panels, conferences, and cooking sessions.

Today, we use our global network of chefs to enable our clients to use their experience and culinary expertise to facilitate fine dining experiences, brand building, knowledge sharing, and food research and development.

Together with our chefs, we live and breathe the culinary mission and create the most powerful and creative solutions for our clients on a daily basis.

LLA: How has your multicultural background, being raised in the Netherlands and now living and working in France, influenced your approach to gastronomy?

LT: Since I was very young, I have traveled abroad. To visit other countries and cultures is an adventure that opens many doors. You can't help but be affected by it. It has changed my way of thinking, broadened my consciousness, and changed my outlook on life forever. I have learned that other cultures are radically different from our own and yet at the same time strangely familiar.

In the beginning, I often compared cuisines, but that is a very narrow and ultimately unfulfilling way. You are depriving yourself of a lot of wonderful experiences.

There is a deep insight to be gained from watching others go about their daily lives, cooking and eating exotic foods and engaging in traditions that are so foreign. At that moment you realize that your way, your culture, your whole life is not the only way to live!

With the rise of the web, the globalization of food has brought new culinary influences to countries around the world. It has also raised concerns for me, as it has for everyone in the industry: There is a risk of losing the unique cultural identity associated with these foods as traditional cuisines are adapted and fused with other culinary traditions.

FOOD IS AN ESSENTIAL PART OF EVERY CULTURE, BUT IT’S MORE THAN JUST A MEANS OF SUSTENANCE; IT’S A WAY OF EXPRESSION, A WAY OF CONNECTING WITH OTHERS, AND A WAY OF PASSING ON A RICH CULTURAL HERITAGE.

This is how I approach every culinary experience I have. No matter what country I am in. For me, it’s the only way I can enjoy it without having to compare it to other cultures. Ultimately, it is about respecting the person preparing the food and the story told around it.

LLA: As someone deeply involved in organizing culinary events, what are the key elements you consider when matching your clients’ expectations with the aspirations of the chefs you work with?

LT: After almost 20 years of experience, I know exactly how to match my chefs with my clients. Knowledge is power, as they say, so it is very important to know both your chefs and your clients well: their philosophy, their needs, their weaknesses, their strengths, and their commitment.

Over the years, you get a sense of who they are and what their wishes are. There is a lot of reading between the lines, a lot of observation, but above all a lot of empathy.

For me, it is a two-way street: Who we are is as important as what we do.

LLA: What emerging trends have you seen embracing the culinary world, and which one has particularly caught your attention?

LT: The culinary world has been turned upside down since the internet. There is access to everything and we have entered a period of experiencing and developing new trends. Not only in terms of fusion and molecular cuisine but also in terms of sustainability and everything that goes with it. There is much more than just one culinary tradition in each country, which has created a sort of cultural melting pot of cuisines. That in itself is very interesting because, as I said, it broadens people’s minds and interests. But I am of the humble opinion that you have to be careful not to go too far. The roots have to remain. What I see, and what I find very appealing, is that more and more young chefs realize that they should not be constantly influenced by social media.

What do other chefs do; their cooking techniques, their plating, their use of ingredients, etc. They want to work much more with their own local produce and create honest, healthy food the way they want it. As people in their country love it. This brings us back to authenticity.

LLA: With your experience as a recipe creator, author, and food writer, what inspires you most when developing new culinary concepts or writing about food?

LT: My inspiration comes from the past as well as from the present. It is whatever comes to my mind or crosses my path. It could be a particular person, a visit to my local market where I see a product displayed in a certain way, talking with my kids, a dream, a telephone conversation with a chef, or even the weather.

I try to be as uninfluenced as I can, although I’m not always successful!

LLA: As a culinary critic and judge, what criteria do you prioritize when evaluating dishes or culinary experiences?

LT: The dish must surprise me from the moment it is placed in front of me. This is the first emotion that I will feel, followed by curiosity. After taking the first bite, I should be able to experience a kind of wholeness in my mouth. The sourness, the saltiness, the bitterness, the sweetness, and the umami should become one.

You can achieve this by using all your senses: seeing, smelling, hearing, touching, and tasting.

Other more or less subjective criteria are also taken into account, such as the name, which should make you want to try it.

It is rare, but unforgettable, to experience pure, unadulterated emotion. For me, the tasting of food is a great pleasure, a real privilege. Judging takes energy, strange as it may seem. All your senses are at work and there is a need for time for processing. It’s all about the emotions!

LLA: In your opinion, what defines true luxury in the realm of food and beverage experiences, and how will you advocate for these principles within the advisory board’s deliberations?

LT: In my company, we believe that culinary luxury is about creating a holistic luxury experience that exudes sophistication and offers an exclusive, immersive, and multi-sensory experience that goes far beyond a typical meal or drink.

In our opinion, luxury in gastronomy is all about the philosophy, the quality, the location, and the exclusiveness.

A restaurant should radiate refinement and offer an exclusive sensory experience that goes far beyond a typical meal or drink. In order to achieve this, CHEFS’ by Lise Timmer works together with renowned chefs, mixologists, and food experts.

Most of the board members become board members because they have a unique skill, experience, or special knowledge to bring to the table. They are part of an array of talents that complement each other individually and collectively.

EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW WITH COURTNEY BRANDT: EXPLORING THE WORLD OF FINE DINING AND HOSPITALITY

WELCOME TO AN EXCLUSIVE DISCUSSION WITH COURTNEY BRANDT, A NEWLY APPOINTED LUXURY LIFESTYLE AWARDS
FOOD & BEVERAGES ADVISORY BOARD MEMBER. WITH OVER EIGHT YEARS OF EXPERIENCE IN THE MIDDLE EAST'S FINE
DINING AND HOSPITALITY SCENE AND 15
YEARS LIVING IN THE REGION, COURTNEY
BRINGS A WEALTH OF EXPERTISE AND A UNIQUE PERSPECTIVE TO THE PANEL.

Luxury Lifestyle Awards: Congratulations on your appointment as a Luxury Lifestyle Awards Food & Beverages Advisory Board Member! With your extensive experience in the Middle East's fine dining and hospitality scene, how do you envision bringing a unique perspective to the board?

Courtney Brandt: Having been adjacent to the Middle East's fine dining and hospitality scene for several years, I've witnessed the maturity of an exciting gastronomic scene. Having dined out both locally and globally, for every review and visit, I carefully look at menu development, service standards, guest experiences, and the uniqueness of menus offered. Over the years, I believe this experience has granted me valuable insights into market trends, the overall competitive landscape, and challenges in the region's dynamic culinary landscape.

Many fine dining and hospitality establishments in the Middle East attract a diverse clientele worldwide. I can help understand the needs and expectations of international guests and leverage this insight to enhance the organization's worldwide appeal and competitiveness. Overall, the Middle East increasingly attracts culinary tourists seeking authentic, immersive food and beverage experiences. Luxury establishments can capitalize on this trend by showcasing locally developed talent and delivering world-class hospitality to discerning travelers.

LLA: Your portfolio boasts an impressive array of publications and media appearances, including Vogue Arabia, Food&Wine, and BBC5's "The World's Most Luxurious Hotels" program. How do you believe your media background enhances your ability to assess and advocate for excellence in the food and beverage industry?

CB: Great question; thank you! My favorite thing to do is communicate and discover. That means being active during visits or reviews and speaking with chefs, GMs, sommeliers, or others involved in leadership roles in hospitality. As I've grown in the industry, I've built relationships with diverse stakeholders, including those in the kitchen and various industry experts, influencers, and KOLs (key opinion leaders) like myself. My network is valuable for advocating for excellence in the food and beverage industry by connecting with key players, sharing best practices, and collaborating on initiatives to improve quality standards and promote innovation. Finally, I prioritize transparency in my interactions by clearly stating the sources of information and disclosing any biases or invitations. I think this step is critical in all of my interactions, and I hope other professionals will commit to the same levels of disclosure.

LLA: You've been actively engaged in various conferences and events within the hospitality and food industry, such as Gulf Host and The Restaurant Show. Could you share some key insights or trends you've observed in the luxury dining sector?

CB: I live in a dynamic city, Dubai, where things constantly change, and there is always a new outlet opening, conference, award show, or platform to bring those in the industry together. Furthermore, what I might have spoken about with people in 2016-2019 aren't the same topics in 2024. Overall, there is a growing emphasis on sustainability within the luxury dining sector. Consumers are increasingly concerned about their dining choices' environmental and social impact. This leads to a demand for sustainable practices such as locally sourced ingredients and minimal food waste. I also feel that luxury diners seek more than just a meal; they want memorable experiences to engage all the senses. This has led to the rise of experiential dining concepts such as immersive tasting menus, interactive culinary experiences, and multi-sensory dining events that stimulate creativity and delight diners. Fortunately, in the UAE, we have plenty of restaurants to choose from and a rotating list of the world's top culinary talent coming through the city for pop-ups and collaborations. This high level of exchange elevates the already high levels delivered across the city.

LLA: Being appointed as a judge in the Deliveroo 2023 Awards highlights your expertise in evaluating culinary excellence. What criteria do you typically prioritize when assessing the quality and innovation of food and beverage establishments?

CB: Among other activities where I've served as a jury member or judge, I first remember the importance and impact I can have on a team's career or business. A meal, dish, or degustation represents an entire kitchen's hard work and potentially months of R&D, so I take things seriously. Dishes and beverages' taste and flavor profiles are paramount, as are innovative flavor combinations and balanced flavors. The visual appeal of food and drinks – the camera always eats first – can significantly enhance the overall experience. Furthermore, the mastery of culinary techniques and precision in preparation are indicators of a high-quality establishment. Consistency in cooking methods, proper execution of recipes, and attention to cooking times are essential for delivering consistently excellent results.

INNOVATION IN MENU CONCEPTS, INGREDIENT SELECTION,
COOKING TECHNIQUES, AND BEVERAGE OFFERINGS SETS APART
ESTABLISHMENTS. EXCEPTIONAL
SERVICE AND HOSPITALITY
ARE INTEGRAL TO THE DINING EXPERIENCE.

Attentive, knowledgeable staff who anticipate diners' needs, provide recommendations, and create a welcoming atmosphere contribute significantly to the perceived quality of the restaurant.

MY DREAM DINING EXPERIENCE WOULD BE A HARMONIOUS BLEND OF CULINARY EXCELLENCE, EXCEPTIONAL SERVICE, AND UNFORGETTABLE AMBIANCE, SET IN A STUNNING LOCATION THAT ENHANCES THE OVERALL EXPERIENCE.

Finally, the ambiance of a venue can significantly influence the dining experience. Factors such as interior design, lighting, and music selection contribute to the overall enjoyment and perception of quality. And yes, while luxury dining may prioritize quality over price, value for money is still essential. Like others, diners expect fair pricing relative to the quality of the establishment's food, drinks, and overall experience. Consumers increasingly consider the environmental and social impact of their dining choices. Discerning customers may favorably view establishments prioritizing sustainability, ethical sourcing, and environmentally conscious practices.

LLA: As someone who contributes significantly to Google Maps with over 114 million views, you greatly influence diners' choices and perceptions. How do you navigate the responsibility that comes with such a large platform to promote authenticity and excellence in culinary experiences?

CB: Believe it or not, Google Maps is my most successful platform. Through uploading photos to the website, I strive to present a balanced perspective by highlighting my authentic experience at the restaurant. In showcasing often unedited photos, this approach fosters authenticity by sharing exactly what the restaurant offers. Through my images, I hope to help build trust with users. Essentially, I take many photos when I'm out dining, and I want to present an honest version of a restaurant – its interiors and what the dishes look like. Potential diners can then decide where they want to go and what they want to order.

LLA: Staying ahead of trends and innovations is crucial in a rapidly evolving industry. How do you stay informed and adapt to emerging developments in fine dining and hospitality, and how do you foresee these trends shaping the future of luxury food and beverage experiences in the Middle East and beyond?

CB: Basically, every day is a school day! Mostly, I gather information from reputable industry publications, websites, and blogs covering fine dining, hospitality, and culinary trends. These sources provide insights into emerging developments, innovative concepts, and best practices in the field. I analyze discussions and insights shared by professionals in the fine dining and hospitality industries through online forums, social media platforms, and professional networking groups. Engaging with industry experts lets me stay abreast of emerging trends and developments. I track culinary events, expos, and trade shows where leading chefs, restaurateurs, and industry professionals showcase the latest innovations and trends in fine dining and hospitality. Attending or monitoring these events helps me stay informed about emerging developments and industry trends. I also routinely dine out 2-3 times weekly and attend press trips to different countries. By traveling, I can compare the local culinary scene with the trends available worldwide. Information is everywhere; we just need to find the correct source.

LLA: With your extensive travels and experiences, you must have encountered some memorable dining moments. Can you share one of your most unforgettable culinary adventures with us and what made it stand out for you?

CB: That's a huge question. Throughout my travels and in my career, I have been fortunate and privileged to have dined at some truly incredible locations and sat with some of the best chefs in the world. However, one of my early favorites was the Test Kitchen in 2017. Located in Cape Town, South Africa, it simply blew me away. Although it is (sadly) no longer open, the team brought guests first into a "dark room" for snacks and chilled-out vibes, before walking them into the main kitchen and experience. What also struck me was the absolute pride the team had in the menu. As the dishes and wine program showcased the best of South Africa, I was impressed by all the country and its people had to offer.

LLA: As someone deeply entrenched in the world of fine dining and luxury hospitality, if you had the chance to create your dream dining experience, what elements would you incorporate, and where would it be located?

CB: Here are some elements I would incorporate – first of all, the location! I'm not super serious about any particular city or country, but the setting would have to be in a picturesque environment, such as a cliffside overlooking the ocean or a rooftop with panoramic city views. Inside, I would aim to strike a balance between elegance and comfort with warm lighting, plush seating, and tasteful decor, without being too over the top. Live music, such as a jazz quartet or classical ensemble, would add to the atmosphere without overwhelming conversation (with a DJ for late nights and a room for karaoke for late, late nights). The menu would feature a curated selection of seasonal, locally sourced ingredients prepared with precision and creativity. Each dish would be a work of art, showcasing innovative flavor combinations and meticulous attention to detail. Ideally, during the courses, guests could interact with the chefs and learn about the ingredients and techniques. It would be important to me to ensure all team members had a moment with guests.

A carefully curated beverage program would complement the dining experience, featuring an extensive wine selection, artisanal cocktails, and non-alcoholic options tailored to each course. A knowledgeable sommelier or mixologist would guide guests through the beverage pairings, enhancing the flavors and elevating the overall sensory experience. Impeccable service is essential to a dream dining experience, with attentive staff who anticipate guests' needs, provide seamless execution, and create a warm and welcoming atmosphere. Service would be discreet yet personalized, ensuring every guest feels valued and cared for throughout the meal. To cater to individual preferences and dietary restrictions, the dining experience would offer customization options such as personalized tasting menus, nutritional accommodations, and special requests – I want everyone to feel welcome.

The region's pristine environment and rich distillation history provide the foundation for PRAVDA's success. The brand honors this heritage by combining age-old techniques with cutting-edge technology, ensuring a product that remains true to its roots while meeting modern standards of quality and sophistication.

The Secret Behind the Smoothness

At the heart of PRAVDA Vódka's distinct character are its two essential ingredients: late-harvest rye and pure mountain spring water. The rye, sourced from the fertile Wielkopolska region, is harvested later in the season, allowing it to develop a softer, sweeter profile. This results in a vodka with a rich, full-bodied flavor.

Equally crucial is the water, drawn from a protected spring in the Beskid Mountains. This area is safeguarded by law, free from industrial and environmental pollutants, ensuring the water's unmatched purity. The water is transported in stainless steel containers to the distillery, preserving its pristine quality. Together, these ingredients form the backbone of PRAVDA's distinctive smoothness and clarity.

Innovative Production Techniques

PRAVDA Vódka's production process sets it apart in the competitive spirits market. The five-stage distillation process includes an initial distillation followed by four rounds of multi-column distillation. This rigorous approach removes impurities while preserving the vodka's unique flavor profile.

In addition to distillation, PRAVDA employs advanced filtration methods using activated charcoal and other natural materials. This enhances the vodka's smoothness and clarity, resulting in a product that is as refined as it is flavorful. The brand's commitment to small-batch production allows for meticulous quality control, ensuring that every bottle meets the highest standards.

A Sustainable and Community-Focused Brand

PRAVDA Vódka takes its responsibility to the environment and local communities seriously. By sourcing its rye and other ingredients sustainably, the brand minimizes its ecological footprint while supporting local farmers. The use of natural water sources and eco-conscious production methods further underscores PRAVDA's commitment to sustainability.

Beyond its environmental efforts, PRAVDA fosters a sense of community by building strong relationships with its partners, and consumers. This approach not only enhances the brand's reputation but also reinforces its position as a trusted leader in the industry.

A Bottle That Tells a Story

PRAVDA Vódka's iconic bottle design is as distinctive as the spirit it contains. Adorned with a gem symbolizing the purity of its mountain spring water, the bottle reflects the brand's luxury positioning. The lack of a front label, with only essential information on the back, ensures that the elegant design takes center stage. This minimalist yet striking presentation aligns perfectly with PRAVDA's ethos of sophistication and refinement.

Meet Shafer Vineyards, where the magic of winemaking has been bubbling since 1880, back when Napa Valley was just a twinkle in California's eye. It's a place where history and grapevines entwine in a dance that's as old as time itself.

Prohibition attempted to thwart Shafer's legacy from 1919-1931, yet Batista and Maria Scansi, Italian immigrants, whispered secrets to produce covert wine during the dry years.

The legacy continued with John's son, Doug, joining in 1983, and Elias Fernandez in '84, initially as the assistant winemaker. Together, they crafted the Shafer style — elegant, rich, and perfectly balanced. In 2002, Elias earned "Winemaker of the Year" from Food & Wine and received White House recognition for community leadership.

Founded by Charles Bryant, his brother Glenn, and friend Luigi Marucchi, the journey began humbly in a shed once home to their six dogs. With an old copper geyser-turned-still, they set out to craft gin that would redefine South Africa's craft distillery industry and captivate the world.

Their passion for innovation led to the creation of custom copper stills and the use of molecular distillation to preserve the delicate botanicals in their gins. Each batch is infused with botanicals grown in their valley or sourced from neighboring farmers, blending the wild essence of the Karoo with the purest mountain water.

The Six Dogs collection includes Six Dogs Karoo, Blue, Pinotage Stained, and Honey Lime Gin—each a result of their passion for authenticity and dedication to quality and creativity. Today, with two distilleries and a growing team, Six Dogs exports to over 22 countries, including a strong presence in Europe from their base in the Netherlands.

At Six Dogs Distillery, every bottle tells a story of passion, community, and a love for gin crafted one batch at a time.

The winery's core values revolve around maintaining the classic elegance of its wines while embracing innovation. The Cousiño family has worked tirelessly to preserve the history and legacy of their vineyards, but they have also championed regenerative agronomy practices that promote sustainability and environmental responsibility. This balance between tradition and progress is a cornerstone of the brand, as it continuously evolves to meet the demands of the modern wine industry while staying true to its roots.

The winery communicates these values through its active presence on social media platforms, where it shares videos, photographs, and behind-the-scenes glimpses of its winemaking process. These digital platforms allow the brand to connect with a global audience and showcase its commitment to both craftsmanship and sustainability.

Sustainability and Regenerative Agronomy

Viña Cousiño Macul takes its environmental responsibility seriously, ensuring that all its wines are "Certified Sustainable Wine of Chile." The winery has implemented a variety of sustainable initiatives in its vineyards, such as producing its own humus with the help of Californian earthworms, utilizing solar panels to reduce energy consumption, and treating water through a plant that allows for irrigation reuse. Additionally, the vineyards are home to free-range chickens and sheep, which help maintain a natural balance in the ecosystem. Inter-row crops are also cultivated to enrich the soil and promote biodiversity.

One of the most exciting innovations at Cousiño Macul is the recovery of genetic material from original grape varieties such as Riesling, Sauvignon Gris, Cabernet Sauvignon, and Merlot. Partnering with Vitro Andes, the winery is working to preserve and propagate these unique varieties, ensuring the continuity of the Maipo Valley's winemaking heritage for generations to come.

Founded by José Gregorio Correa Albano in the Curicó Valley, Viña San Pedro's journey began with a bold vision: to bring the finest French grape varieties to Chile's fertile lands. Over the years, the winery has upheld this pioneering spirit while also modernizing and expanding its reach, becoming one of Chile's largest and most important wine exporters, with a presence in more than 80 countries worldwide.

What sets Viña San Pedro apart is its ambition to produce wines that reflect the unique terroirs of Chile. The winery operates through two key estates: the Cachapoal Andes Winery, located at the foot of the Andes Mountains, and the Molina Winery, the company's historic home. Both facilities are crucial to their quality, with each wine showcasing distinct characteristics drawn from the varied soils and microclimates of these regions. From the high-altitude vineyards of the Andes to the fertile valleys below, Viña San Pedro has mastered the art of blending tradition and innovation.

Viña San Pedro's focus on sustainability is integral to its winemaking process. The winery embraces a holistic approach to vineyard management, working in harmony with nature to reduce its environmental impact. Over 90% of the vineyard surface is maintained with vegetation between rows, preventing soil compaction and erosion while enhancing the microbiological life of the soil. Additionally, Viña San Pedro has introduced sheep for natural weed control, reducing the reliance on agrochemicals and promoting biodiversity.

The winery's sustainability efforts extend beyond soil management. With 80% of its vineyards now under technical irrigation, Viña San Pedro is actively working toward eliminating flood irrigation by 2030, further increasing water efficiency.

Viña San Pedro also holds certifications under the Chilean Wine National Sustainability Code, a rigorous standard in the Chilean wine industry, reinforcing its commitment to sustainable practices. This dedication is evident not only in its vineyard management but also in its energy practices. The Molina Winery now operates entirely on renewable energy, with 60% of its electricity self-generated from organic waste through a biogas plant, complemented by solar panels. These initiatives exemplify Viña San Pedro's unwavering commitment to renewable energy and environmental stewardship.

Modernization is at the core of Viña San Pedro's winemaking philosophy. The winery continuously explores new techniques and ideas to enhance the quality and diversity of its wines. This forward-thinking approach is evident in its use of unique fermentation and aging containers, such as the granite egg, ceramic egg, and amphorae, which offer distinct characteristics to the wines. These innovations, combined with traditional winemaking methods, allow Viña San Pedro to produce wines with depth, complexity, and exceptional quality.

The winery's portfolio is as diverse as the landscapes from which its wines originate. From everyday wines to fine wines, Viña San Pedro caters to all occasions and palates. Its collection includes iconic wines such as Altair and Cabo de Hornos, each representing the highest expression of Chile's terroir.
